

JOHN REDFERN

I learned very basic bridge in Jr. High School, and subsequently convinced several friends to learn the game. But school prevented me from playing much, and it took decades before I returned to the game while playing on a cruise.

A group of friends from church invited me to join them for a weekly game and we took lessons from Gerrie Owen. She encouraged us to play in tournaments and clubs, and we have really enjoyed the experience.

My desire is to see our tournaments and club games grow, not only in number, but in community
